HP Inkjet Printers: Turn on the printer, open the ink cartridge door, wait for the cartridge to move to the center, then remove and replace the ink.HP Laser Printers: Open the front printer door, pull the blue handle to access the toner cartridges. Remove the old cartridge from the handle and replace it with a new one. In this article, you'll learn how to insert ink into an HP Deskjet printer and toner cartridges into an HP laser printer. Before you start, you'll need to make sure your HP printer is turned on. Also, to prevent damage to the new ink cartridge, do not open the ink cartridge until it is ready for use. Follow these steps to replace the ink cartridges. Patrick Daxenbichler / Getty Images Open the ink cartridge access door on the front of the printer with the sleeve. After a few seconds, the ink cartridge should automatically move to the center of the printer. Wait until the cartridge has stopped moving and the printer is quiet, then press a cartridge to remove it. Open the new ink cartridge and remove the plastic tab, then holding it on the sides with the ink nozzles towards the printer, insert the cartridge with a slight inclination upwards. Press the cartridge until it locks. Repeat for the other ink cartridge. Close the ink cartridge access door. It is recommended to print an alignment page to make sure the cartridges are aligned and the printer can print properly. If you have a Laserjet HP printer instead of an ink printer, you will still need to replace your toner cartridges from time to time. The process is quite similar to replacing an ink cartridge, but there are some differences. That's how you do it Andrey Popov / Images Raise the scanner part of the printer, then raise the top cover of the printer until it locks. Extract the toner cartridge using the sleeve and make it flow upwards until you have removed it. Open the new toner cartridge by pulling the release tab on the outer carton. Hold the cartridge for the handle and align it with the inside the printer, then insert it into the printer until it clicks on the spot. Lower the top cover and the scanner on the printer. FAQ Where is the ink in an HP printer? The ink is contained in ink cartridges in HP Deskjet printers. You will install the colour cartridge to the left of the cart and the black cartridge to the right. HP laser printers use toner cartridges instead of ink cartridges. How do you make generic ink cartridges work on an HP printer? HP recommends that it is 160; only genuine HP ink and toner cartridges are used. And HP cartridge protection measures indicate that your HP printer will not be able to recognize generic ink cartridges, as they are incompatible with HP printers. There are jobs. However, this may disable the protection of the HP cartridge. If your printer is not enabled on the Internet, go to the Settings menu on your printer and look for HP Cartridge protection. Select this option, then select Disable. If your printer is enabled on the Internet and you are using a Windows PC, browse in devices and printers, select your printer and open its Settings. Select estimated input levels to open the HP box. Click on the Cartridge protection, then choose Disable HP Cartridge protection. How do you know which ink cartridge is empty in an HP printer? Most HP printers show ink and toner levels directly on the display. Find an ink drop icon, a cartridge icon or a level indicator. The screen will indicate whether it is the black ink cartridge or the colour cartridge. If you are using a Windows 10 PC, download the HP Smart app for Windows 10, and it will display your ink and toner levels. On a Mac, go to the Apple > System Preferences > Printers &SV Scanners. Select the printer and Click Options and Supplies, and then click the Supply Levels. You will see the current levels of your black and color cartridges. Thank you for telling us! Tell us why! HP's new printer tablet is not the ~-~ you're looking for, but lends a pinch of madness to aMarket tablet that will soon become quite crowded. The HP tablet measures seven inches and, according to a couple of reports, is based on Android. But in view of its customized interface and lack of support for third party apps, to call it an Android tablet seems disintegrated. Instead, apps such as Facebook, Google Maps, Weather and an E-Reader Powered by Barnes & Noble are precarious on the device. Photo courtesy of Technologist. com The main hook of the tablet, however, is its inclusion with the printer for the Photosmart HP printer. Poiche. © the laptop underlines in a tablet video, all apps have been included in the print in mind, except for a music reader. Although the tablet can be detached from the printer and used outside the house, it is mainly supposed to be a way to search for information, print it and take it with you. Which raises the question: why ©? Maybe I'm just me, but I barely use my printer anymore, mostly because of smartphones and tablets. Why? © print a map when you can upload it to a smartphone and get a voice guide in turn? Why? © print long documents when you can just read them and edit them on a tablet? I will allow the idea of using a tablet to browse and print Facebook photos to be appealing, but ideally all tablets should be able to handle tasks like that, regardless of the printer's brand. For example, Apple iPad, will receive a wireless printing function in its next operating system update. However, at $399, the HP Photosmart Printer is cheaper than an iPad, even if it is less versatile. The comparison may not be fair, but it's all we'd have from HP until the web keys arrive, the company's Windows tablets. Incoming.
