Her father is of Italian descent; and her mother, who is from West Virginia, is of half Italian and half French. English, German, and Scottish ancestry. Gaga was able to sing and play the piano from a young age. She attended the Convent of the Sacred Heart from age 11 where was bullied for her appearance (she was small and plumper than other girls with large front teeth) and eccentric habits.By the age of 14, Gaga was performing at open mike nights in clubs and bars. By age 17, she had gained early admission to New York University's Tisch School of the Arts. In addition to sharpening her songwriting skills, she composed essays and analytical papers on art, religion, social issues and politics. At the age of 19 Gaga withdrew from her studies and moved out of her parents' home in order to pursue a musical career. During this time she started a band which began to gain local attention. After a brief partnership with talent scout Rob Fusari, which resulted in the creation of her stage name, Gaga was signed to Def Jam Records in 2006; however she was dropped from the label after just three months. Devastated, Gaga returned home, and became increasingly experimental: fascinating herself with emerging neo-burlesque shows, go-go dancing at bars dressed in little more than a bikini in addition to experimenting with drugs.Gaga met performance artist Lady Starlight during this time; after a performance at Lollapalooza Festival in 2007 Gaga was signed by Vince Herbert to Streamline Records, an imprint of Interscope Records. Having served as an apprentice songwriter under an internship at Famous Music Publishing, which was later acquired by Sony/ATV Music Publishing, Gaga subsequently struck a music publishing deal with Sony/ATV. As a result, she was hired to write songs for Britney Spears and labelmates New Kids on the Block, Fergie, and the Pussykats. Dolls. At Interscope, singer-songwriter Akon recognized her vocal abilities when she sang a reference vocal for one of his tracks in studio; Akon then convinced Interscope's then-CEO Chaz Chenn and CEO Jimmy Iovine to form a joint deal by having her sing his own label Kon Live, making her his "franchise player." In 2008 Gaga released her first album "The Fame" to lukewarm radio play; Gaga toured around Europe and in gay clubs in the US to promote the album - however it was not until her first hit "Just Dance" came to mainstream attention in 2009 that Gaga exploded onto the music scene.Since then Gaga has gained numerous awards and nominations for a string of hits; her first album spawned several more smash hits "Paparazzi", "Lovegame" and "Poker Face"; while touring the album Gaga wrote "The Fame Monster", an EP examining the darker side of her new-found fame. The Fame Monster was released in 2009 and won multiple awards, spawning her most iconic single 'Bad Romance' as well as 'Telephone' and 'Alejandro'. During this time Gaga came under increased public and critical scrutiny for her eccentric and often bizarre style choices. Gaga embarked on her second tour, The Monster Ball; upon finishing in May 2011, the critically acclaimed and commercially accomplished tour ran for over one and a half years and grossed $227.4 million, making it one of the highest-grossing concert tours of all time and the highest-grossing for a debut headlining artist. Concerts performed at Madison Square Garden in New York City were filmed for an HBO television special. The special accrued one of its five Emmy Award nominations and has since been released on DVD and Blu-ray.In 2011 Gaga released her second full-length album "Born This Way"; the album was received vastly more critically than her previous two for touching on themes of politics, sexuality, and religion. Despite this, the album's songs were praised critically, and Born This Way sold 1.108 million copies in its first week in the US, debuting atop the Billboard 200, and topping the charts in more than 20 other countries. In addition to exceeding 8 million copies in worldwide sales, Born This Way received 3 Grammy Award nominations, including her third consecutive for Album of the Year. In March 2012, Gaga was ranked fourth on Billboard's list of top moneymakers of 2011, grossing $25,353,039 dollars, which included sales from Born This Way and her Monster Ball Tour.At the end of April 2012, Gaga's Born This Way kicked off in Korea - the tour would last 2 years and take the singer to every continent of the globe. However in February 2012 the tour was abruptly canceled; Gaga had a labral tear in her right hip which she had been nursing secretly for several weeks in the hopes that she would be able to continue the tour. After a performance in Toronto left her unable to walk and in considerable pain, she was taken to hospital for surgery and the tour was canceled. Through to Jan 17, the tour had grossed $168.2 million and moved 1.6 million tickets to 85 shows, according to Billboard Boxscore, with the Asian, European, and South American legs already completed in 2012. The North American leg, which was to wrap the tour and was almost completely sold out, would have likely put the tour at more than $200 million gross, easily in the top 20 tours of all time and probably in the top 15, according to Billboard. As it stands, Gaga finished sixth among all touring artists in 2012, with a gross of $125 million and attendance of more than 1.1 million, according to Boxscore. Gaga wrote her third album, ARTPOP, released in 2013. Gaga made her acting debut in Robert Rodriguez's Macête nogalina (2013), the sequel to his 2010 film Machete, and also appeared in Rodriguez's sequel Grêku pilisêta: Liktenigêta sievietie (2014). In 2018, she starred with Bradley Cooper, who also directed, in Zvaigzne ir dzimusi (2018). Gaga received her first Academy Award nomination for Best Actress for the role.IMDbProStarmeritTop 5,00060You have no recently viewed pages Lady GagaGaga at the inauguration of Joe Biden, 2021BornStefani Joanne Angelina Germanotta (1986-03-28) March 28, 1986 (age 39)New York City, USOccupations Singer songwriter actress Years active2000–presentWorks Discography songs videography performances Board member ofPresident's Committee on the Arts and HumanitiesBorn This Way FoundationHaus LabsPartner(s)Taylor Kinney (2011–16)Christian Carino (2017–19)Michael Polansky (2020–present; engaged)MotherCynthia BissettAwardsFull listMusical careerGenres Pop dance electronic jazz rock pop rock alternative rock Instruments Vocals piano Labels Def Jam Cherrytree KonLive Streamline Interscope Websiteladygaga.comsignature Stefani Joanne Angelina Germanotta (born March 28, 1986), better known as her stage name Lady Gaga, is an American singer, songwriter and actress. She has a mezzo-soprano vocal range. Her albums are The Fame, The Fame Monster, Born This Way, Artpop, Cheek to Cheek, Joanne, Chromatica, and Love for Sale. In the US, she has earned six number-one singles and six number-one albums. She has won 14 Grammy Awards, two Golden Globe Awards, three American Music Awards, and three BRIT Awards.[1][2] Gaga is known for her versatility in music. She got her stage name from the song "Radio Ga Ga" by the band Queen.[3] She won a Golden Globe Award for her acting role in the television series American Horror Story: Hotel in 2016. Gaga played the female lead, Ally, in the 2018 movie A Star Is Born, where she stars alongside Bradley Cooper. She additionally portrays Patrizia Reggiani in the 2021 Ridley Scott film, House of Gucci. Stefani Joanne Angelina Germanotta was born at the Hospital Northwell Health in Upper East Side, New York City, on March 28, 1986. She is the oldest daughter of Joseph Germanotta, an internet businessman, and Cynthia (née Bissett).[4][5] She has a younger sister named Natali, who is a fashion student. Lady Gaga is of Italian (her paternal grandfather was from Naso, in the province of Messina and he came up to the United States on 1908) and French Canadian ancestry. She learned to play piano at the age of four. She wrote her first piano song at 13. She started performing live by age 14.[6] At the age of 11, Gaga went to the Convent of the Sacred Heart. This is a private Roman Catholic school on Manhattan's Upper East Side.[7][8] Her family wasn't rich. She has said that her parents "both came from lower-class families, so we've worked for everything my mother worked eight to eight out of the house, in telecommunications, and so did my father."[9] In high school, Gaga played lead roles in Guys and Dolls and in Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum.[10] Gaga said her high school life was "very dedicated, very studious, very disciplined". She also said that it was "insecure". She said in an interview that, "I didn't fit in, and I felt like a freak." [11][12][13] Gaga was 17 when she went to New York University's Tisch School of the Arts. She lived in a NYU dorm on 11th Street. She studied music. She helped to write essays on art, religion, social issues and politics. Gaga felt that she was more of a loner than some of her classmates. "Once you learn how to think about it, you can reach yourself," she said. By the second semester of her second year, she left school to focus on her musical career. Her father agreed to pay her rent for a year, if she agreed to go back to Tisch if she failed. "I left my entire family, got the cheapest apartment I could find, and ate shit until somebody would listen," she said, and she said that she has had bulimia and anorexia since she was 15.[14][15][16] In 2005, Gaga began a band called the Stefani Germanotta Band. [17] The band played in local dive bars during 2005-2007 where they performed her debut EP, Red and Blue, Gaga revisited these locations during her Dive Bar Tour during 2016.[18] Gaga started her creative team, the Hoes of Gaga, in 2008. On August 19, 2008, her first album The Fame was released. It included the hit singles "Just Dance" (featuring Colby O'Donis), "Poker Face", and "Paparazzi". The first three singles became number-one hits for Gaga in the United States, Canada, the United Kingdom, Australia, and several other countries. "Poker Face" was the bestselling song of 2009 globally.[19] Gaga's follow-up EP, The Fame Monster, was released on November 18, 2009. It contained the singles "Bad Romance", "Telephone" (featuring R&B singer Beyoncé), and "Alejandro". They became hits worldwide. All seven of these songs got into the top ten of the US Billboard Hot 100. The first six reached number one on Billboard's Mainstream Top 40/Pop Songs chart. Gaga released her second studio album, Born This Way, on May 23, 2011. Before that, Gaga released the song of the same name on February 11, 2011. The song entered the charts at number 1 in America, becoming her third number-one single there. Born This Way became Gaga's first number-one album in the United States, selling over one million copies there in its first week. Following the song "Born This Way", the singles "Judas", "The Edge of Glory", and "You and I" reached the top ten in the US. The album's final single, "Marry the Night", became a top-thirty hit there. In 2012, Gaga bought 55 items from an auction for Michael Jackson's possessions.[20] She also released her first fragrance, Fame. The liquid of the perfume is black but smells clear, which is "like the soul of a flower". On November 6, 2013, her third studio album, Artpop, was released and became Gaga's second American number-one album. The album includes the singles "Perfect Illusion" and "Million Reasons". The first single reached the top twenty around the world. The second reached as high as No. 52 on the US when it first charted. Gaga performed in the Super Bowl LI (51) Halftime Show on February 5, 2017, in Houston, Texas.[24] This became the most-watched halftime show in history across all platforms.[25] (the second-most watched on television, behind Katy Perry's 2015 halftime show). After Gaga's performance, "Million Reasons" entered the Billboard Hot 100 again at number four, tying the record for the highest re-entry on the Hot 100.[25] It became her 14th top-ten hit and her 10th top-five in the US. It was later certified Platinum by the RIAA. After Beyoncé announced that she could not perform the Coachella Festival due to her expecting twins, it was revealed that Gaga would perform instead. She performed her old hits along with a new song, "The Cure", that was released the next day. It reached number one on the iTunes charts of 62 countries on the day it was released.[26] From August 2017 to February 2018, Gaga performed on the Joanne World Tour.[27] Some shows in November, along with the final ten shows on the tour, were canceled due to Gaga's fibromyalgia. A Netflix documentary about her life, called Gaga: Five Foot Two, was released on September 22, 2017. The documentary won the award for Best Music Documentary at the 2018 MTV Movie & TV Awards.[28] On November 19, 2017, Gaga performed "The Cure" from the Joanne World Tour during the 2017 American Music Awards. She won the award for Favorite Pop/Rock Female Artist later that night. Gaga starred in a remake of the film A Star Is Born alongside Bradley Cooper, which was released on October 5, 2018.[29] Two singles from the movie's soundtrack were released: "Shallow" (with Bradley Cooper) and "Always Remember Us This Way". "Shallow" topped charts in Australia and the UK while initially reaching the top five in the US and Canada. It won two Grammy Awards for Best Song Written for Visual Media and Best Pop Duo/Group Performance.[30] The soundtrack entered at number one on the Billboard 200 album chart, giving Gaga the most number-one albums in the 2010's decade for a woman (with five US number-one albums)[31] Gaga is currently performing in a residency show in Las Vegas at the MGM Park Theater, called Lady Gaga Enigma. It began on December 28, 2018.[32][33] In February 2019, it was reported that Gaga and Christian Carino, her boyfriend of two years, had called off their engagement. [34] Later that month, Gaga won her first Academy Award, known as an Oscar, in the Best Original Song category for "Shallow".[35] She performed the song alone at the 61st Grammy Awards but joined with Cooper at the Oscars. After the Oscars performance, the song became Gaga's fourth number-one hit on the Billboard Hot 100 and Cooper's first.[36] On March 12, 2019, Gaga responded on Twitter to tabloid rumors that she was pregnant, writing, "Rumors I'm pregnant? Yeah, I'm pregnant with #LGE," referring to her sixth studio album.[37] On May 6, 2019, Gaga was one of the chairpersons of the Met Gala, a yearly dinner held by Vogue editor-in-chief Anna Wintour at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City.[38] It is known for its celebrity guests and themes. The 2019 theme was Camp: Notes on Fashion. Gaga wore four layers: a long fuchsia coat with a hair bow, a black gown, a fuchsia dress, and black lingerie.[39] In July 2019, Gaga revealed her beauty collection, called Haus Laboratories. It was released for pre-order on its website and Amazon, whose Prime Day sale occurred July 15 and 16 of that year.[40] Haus Laboratories was later changed in 2022 to Haus Labs by Lady Gaga. A song by Gaga, titled "Stupid Love", leaked online in January 2020. Gaga later released the final version of the song on February 28, 2020, as the first single from her upcoming sixth studio album, revealed to be called Chromatica. The song entered the top ten of charts in several countries. It became Gaga's sixteenth top-ten and twelfth top-five hit on the Billboard Hot 100 when it debuted at number five.[41] Chromatica was planned for release on April 10, 2020, but was postponed to May 29 because of the global coronavirus (COVID-19) outbreak. On April 18, 2020, Gaga performed the song "Smile" as part of the TV special One World: Together at Home, which featured appearances from many entertainers, such as Jennifer Lopez, Beyoncé, Taylor Swift, and Elton John. The program, which was organized by Gaga and Global Citizen in an effort to raise money for those affected by COVID-19, raised over $127 million.[42][43] It earned the Guinness World Record for "Most Money Raised for Charity by a Remote Music Festival".[44] On May 22, a week before the album's new release date, she released "Rain on Me", a duet with Ariana Grande, as the album's second single. It entered at the top of the Billboard Hot 100, giving Gaga her fifth number-one song in the US.[45] Chromatica entered at the top of the Billboard 200 album chart in the US, giving Gaga her sixth US number-one album. She also earned six number-one albums faster than any other female in Billboard history.[45] Scheduled for 2020, the Chromatica Ball Tour was rescheduled for 2021 and then rescheduled a second time until 2022 because of the coronavirus pandemic.[46][47] On August 30, 2020, at the MTV Video Music Awards, Gaga won the first Tricon Award, along with Artist and Song of the Year and Best Collaboration and Best Cinematography for "Rain on Me".[48] With these five wins, Gaga's career VMA awards total 18. Gaga released a short film for the Chromatica song "911" on September 18, 2020.[49] Gaga won Favorite Electronic Dance Music (EDM) Artist at the 2020 American Music Awards, becoming the first female artist to do so.[50] Gaga went public with her relationship with philanthropist Michael Polansky that year.[51] Gaga performed the US national anthem at the inauguration of President Joe Biden and Vice President Kamala Harris on January 20, 2021.[52] On March 14, 2021, "Rain on Me" won the Grammy Award for Best Pop Duo/Group Performance. Chromatica was nominated for Best Pop Vocal Album.[53] Gaga appeared in the 2021 Apple TV+ documentary series The Me You Can't See, which was executive-produced by Oprah Winfrey and Prince Harry. It discusses the topic of mental health. In one episode, Gaga revealed that she had been raped and left pregnant by a music producer at the age of 19 and was threatened that her music would be burned if she did not take off her clothes.[54] The Chromatica remix album, Dawn of Chromatica, was released September 3, 2021. It features collaborations from several artists.[55] Originally scheduled for a spring 2021 release,[56] Gaga's second album with Tony Bennett, Love for Sale, was released October 1, 2021. Their cover of Cole Porter's "I Get a Kick Out of You" was released August 3, 2021. Bennett's 95th birthday.[57] Gaga stars as Patrizia Reggiani (with Adam Driver as Maurizio Gucci) in the Ridley Scott-directed film House of Gucci, released November 24, 2021.[58][59] On April 3, 2022, Love for Sale won the Grammy Awards for Best Traditional Pop Vocal Album and Best Engineered Album, Non-Classical. Since the second award is an engineer's award, this brings Gaga's total Grammy wins to 13. The album and its single "I Get a Kick Out of You" were nominated in four further categories.[60][61] Gaga released the power ballad "Hold My Hand", written for the movie Top Gun: Maverick (2022). While the song charted modestly around the world, it was nominated for the Academy Award for Best Original Song at the 95th Academy Awards, where she also performed.[62] It was also nominated for the same category at the 80th Golden Globe Awards.[63] On February 24, 2021, it was reported that Ryan Fischer, a friend of Gaga, was shot in Hollywood while walking Gaga's three French Bulldogs (Asia, Gustav, and Koji). Two men exited a white car, and Fischer was shot four times in the chest; Gustav and Koji were stolen. Asia was rescued by the Los Angeles Police Department. Fischer was sent to the hospital, and it was announced later that he would fully recover. Gaga, while filming a movie in Italy, announced a $500,000 reward for anyone who turned in the dogs. Two days later, the dogs were turned in to a Los Angeles police station, unharmed, and returned to one of Gaga's representatives.[64] A judge later ruled that Gaga did not have to pay the reward to a woman charged in connection with the dog theft, although the woman claimed to have found the dogs and filed suit against Gaga for lack of payment.[65][66] Gaga opened the 2024 Summer Olympics in Paris on July 26, 2024, with a performance of "Mon Truc en Plumes" ("My Thing in Feathers") by Zizi Jeanmaire.[67][68] On August 16, 2024, she released the ballad "Die with a Smile", a duet with Bruno Mars.[69] This marks their first collaboration. It topped the US Billboard Hot 100 and became her sixth US chart-topper.[70] It won Gaga and Mars the Grammy Award for Best Pop Duo/Group Performance in 2025, Gaga's 14th Grammy win.[71] Gaga also made an appearance in the music video for "Fat, Juicy, & Wet", a duet by Bruno Mars and rapper Sexxy Red.[72] Gaga also confirmed she became engaged to Polansky earlier in the year. Gaga starred in Todd Phillips' film Joker: Folie à Deux (2024) alongside Joaquin Phoenix. She portrayed Lee, a reimagined Harley Quinn. It was released in theaters October 4, 2024.[73] A week prior, Gaga released Harleyquin, an album meant as a "companion album" to Joker: Folie à Deux. Like the film's soundtrack, it contains pop standards as well as original material. She enlisted her fiancé as a co-writer on several tracks. On October 25, 2024, Gaga released the electropop song "Disease", the lead single to her anticipated seventh studio album, temporarily called LG7, later revealed to be called MAYHEM. The album was set for a February 2025 release but was pushed back to March 7. The album is also set to include "Die with a Smile".[74] On February 2, 2025, she released the second single from Mayhem, the dance-pop song "Abracadabra", during the night of the 67th Grammy Awards.[75] The song reached the top twenty in the US and Canada and the top three in the UK. After standalone dates in Brazil, Mexico City, and Singapore were revealed, Gaga later announced the Mayhem Ball Tour that will begin in July 2025. While the Chromatica Ball used stadiums, the Mayhem Ball will use arenas, as Gaga has stated this will allow for more control of the show, calling it "theatrical and electrifying".[76] Rome, 2011 Gaga has a striking fashion sense. The New York Post said her early look was like "a refugee from Jersey Shore" with "big black hair, heavy eye makeup and tight, revealing clothes." [77] Gaga has naturally brown hair. She bleached her hair blonde so she wouldn't look like Amy Winehouse.[4] Much of Gaga's early success is due to her gay fans. She is often called a "rising gay icon." [78] Early in her career she had trouble being played on the radio, and stated, "The turning point for me was the gay community. I've got so many gay fans and they're so loyal to me and they really lifted me up. They'll always stand by me and I'll always stand by them. It's not an easy thing to create a fanbase."
