Given article text here with University of Colorado Boulder, Robert Cantu says Cotton Elementary School is a nice school but the parents are holding it back. When teachers speak to parents about misbehaving kids, it's clear that the parents' lifestyle and values don't match the school's expectations. This suggests that the kids will continue to misbehave. The situation is made worse when parents dress in attire reminiscent of punk rock or appear "ghetto", implying a lack of class and respect for authority. Children from these households often struggle academically and socially, making it challenging for teachers to manage classroom behavior. On the other hand, Oranda Prieto praises Cotton Elementary School, stating that it's an amazing school with wonderful principles who encourage confidence and self-esteem. She notes that many teachers are supportive and willing to help students when needed. The PE coaches also make a positive impact by promoting fun and engaging activities. Tabitha Johnson shares similar sentiments, mentioning that her children have had good experiences at the school despite some logistical challenges. However, she expresses frustration with the lack of support from administrative staff during busy times, which made it difficult to obtain her son's report card. Overall, both Oranda and Tabitha highly recommend Cotton Elementary School for its commitment to student well-being and academic success. Given article text here She obviously hadn't already responded to my first two voicemails and emails about registration, why would she have time to get me a copy of my son's report card when I know someone else could easily help her and do it better. I went to this school and my oldest child attended here, now my youngest is currently enrolled too. Yesterday, I needed my son's report card, but no one helped me. During the busiest time, they kept telling me to talk to Ms. Villarreal about registration for the following year. She obviously hadn't already responded to my first two voicemails and emails about registration, why would she have time to get me a copy of my son's report card when I know someone else could easily help her and do it better. The only two faculty members who responded with any kind of feedback were Coach Arce and Ms. Apodaca. I applaud them for their efforts. Five stars to them, only for going above and beyond in responding to a mother trying to help her son stay on track. Everyone else just wants to follow policy and procedures because that's their job. Well, thumbs down to you. Help a staff member out, cuz Ms. Villarreal could possibly use some of y'all's help in getting back to these parents. You're a TEAM! My boss thought by moving his son to Agnes Cotton Elementary would be better but was wrong and I'm right from the beginning. Bowden and Washington Elementary are way better, especially challenging programs that help kids with their homework and pay attention. Bowden and Washington Elementary are way better than Agnes Cotton Academy, which is an above average public charter school in San Antonio, TX. It has 482 students in grades PK, K-8 with a student-teacher ratio of 15 to 1. Agnes Cotton Academy is a San Antonio ISD elementary school located in San Antonio, TX.
