Don't ruin that impression by submitting a resume that looks as if you have never worked with a text editor before.Here's how to provide a proper format for your kindergarten teacher resume:Make sure that your resume includes the following parts:Header – include your name and contact information.Summary Statement- use this section to bring out the best of your experience.Work Experience- list your most significant accomplishments. Education – provide relevant information about schools you graduated from and other educational achievements.Skills – remember to include skills matching your job ad.Additional Sections- feel free to include information about conferences you participated in, volunteering experience or certificates obtained.Read more about resume formatting: Best Resume Format: Samples for All Types of ResumesNow that you already know how to format your resume, let's move on to the next important step that may either make or break your resume – your work experience.2. Start With a Kindergarten Teacher Resume Work Experience SectionRemember that you get only one chance to make a great first impression. The hiring team will only take a few seconds to see if you are THE teacher they are looking for, so make sure to craft this section carefully.Here are some tips on how to boost your work experience section:Use a reverse-chronological order and list your last job title first.Include the company name and dates worked for each job position.Add no more than 6 bullet points.Make sure to talk more about your specific achievements instead of simply listing your responsibilities. Try to include numerical data to point out the results of your work.Use the PAR (Problem-Action-Result) formula to highlight your accomplishments.Describe your achievements using action verbs.For more information on listing your work experience, see Resume Work Experience, History & Job Description ExamplesHave a look at resume examples below:Kindergarten Teacher Job Description for a ResumeNot hard to tell which candidate will have more chances of winning the job battle. Seems like two different people?You couldn't be more wrong! Actually, both samples come from the same candidate. In the right one, the candidate focused on specific achievements rather than just listing her day-to-day responsibilities.In the wrong one, she just provided a general list of her everyday tasks with no indication of what she could bring to the learning environment as a teacher.Are you an aspiring kindergarten teacher with no relevant work experience? Don't worry, you can still create a solid work experience section focusing on your internships and volunteering work. Have a look at examples below:Pre Kindergarten Teacher Resumes: Work ExperienceAgain, these have been prepared by the same candidate. See the difference now?
