By Jeff Grundy The Chris Jackson / Getty Images Entertainment / Getty Images Facebook has more than one billion active members, and, consequently, the mega-site has billions of photos and videos published by users. As a result, it is likely that occasionally you will see videos you like and maybe they want to download. Unlike photos of users published on the site, Facebook does not offer a native "Download" link for videos, NÂ© provides other means to download videos that you have not posted. However, there are several free websites that make relatively simple to download virtually any Facebook video. Open your web browser and go to the Facebook login page. Access Facebook with your username and password. Browse pages and timelines of friends, companies and groups that follow. Find a Facebook post with a link to a video you want to download and save on your computer. Right-click on the video thumbnail image in the post, then click "Copy Connection Position" if you use Firefox. If you use Chrome as a browser, right-click the thumbnail image and click "Copy Address Link". For Internet Explorer, right-click on the thumbnail and click "Copy Connection". Open a new tab in your browser. Switch to a website that allows you to download Facebook videos on your computer. Sites like downvids.net, video grabber and webvideoftcher.com are all free websites that allow you to download videos online from Facebook with a couple of mouse clicks. Place the mouse cursor inside the "URL" or "Video URL" field on the video download site homepage. Press the "CTRL + V" keys to paste the Facebook video link within the field. Click on the "Download", "" Recovery "," GRAB IT "or other button with similar name to the video download site. Wait a few seconds to connect to Facebook and locate the video file associated with the inserted link. Click on "Download" or "Save to Computer" on the video download site. Click "Run" if requested by your web browser. Wait a few seconds for the video website to generate the download link. Click again On the "Download this video" or "Download" button. Select a folder on your computer to save the video, then click "Save" or "OK". Your web browser download the Facebook video and save it to the selected folder . Downloading video files from the APP DISCORD is intuitive, eliminating the need for third-party apps. And, with the size of the upload file limit of 8 megabytes for videos, images and other files, the download is not It should take more than a few seconds. In addition to players, other groups that share common interests, from the people who are interested in compromising fantasy football fanatics, spend time on discord. His most remarkable overvoltage of the popularity, however, can be attributed to the communities of the game that used the discord to communicate during the large game, team games like Fortite Battle Royale and Overwatch. Download and use of discord is easy. The It is free and available for computer and smartphone users who are at least 13 years old. Also, discord is compatible with Windows, Mac, Android, iOS and Linux and you can access via an app or web browser. To start using discord, visit the official app and download it. As with most other apps, you need to provide some personal details, including a valid email address and a phone number. You will also need to assign you a unique username. During recording and the installation process, the app should be able to automatically detect the microphone and the camera. If the app does not collect the camera and / or microphone, you can make adjustments after logging in. Once you have finished registering and accessing, you can find that the homepage is easy to navigate Â© Â©, ~ "and it's complete with self-trusted tutorials. Looking for quick suggestions about the many feature of the app? Click on exclamation points Orange. Once you are at ease with the layout, you can start joining chat room Â© Â©, ~ Â© Â© or, in discord, speaks "server" Â© Â©, ~ Â© Â© or create yours. Discord only allows users to upload up to 8 MB of sized videos to share on their servers. While this size is enough just for a short high-definition video clip (HD) (or a lightly longest standard quality video), It's big enough for most photos. To download a video (or any file) that is loaded to a server, right-click on the file and select Download. The file will be automatically downloaded to the Default device download position. If you are using the app M Oil, click the arrow at the top right corner to start the download. Photo of courtesy: Eclipse Images / Getty Images Loading a video is even easier. If you are sure your video clip is below the 8 MB limit, you can click on it and drag it into the app. The discord will automatically pick it up and request to charge it. Alternatively, you can click the load box at the bottom of the window next to the chat bar. This will open your file manager. Select the video file you want to share and click on "Load". Also, there are two ways to upload larger video files than 8 MB. Option A: Subscribe to the Nitro discord. For $ 9.99 per month (or $ 99.99 per year), you can upload files that are great as 50 MB of data at any time. In addition to the up-to-date load limit, Nitro also allows you to increase the server, use animated gifs, transmit better liveStreams and create a personalized discord tag. Looking for another way to get around the loading limit? Option B: Upload your video to your cloud store or on any video file hosting site. Copy the link to your video and share the connection to your server. Users who want to download your video can then follow the file hosting service download process.
