Web site developer app support privacy policy currently, it is not possible as airdrop uses bluetooth to create a peer-to-peer Wi-Fi network between devices. each device creates a firewall around the connection and files are sent encrypted, which actually makes it safer than transfer via email. airdrop automatically detects supported devices nearby, and devices must be close enough to establish a good Wi-Fi connection, allowing you to share files in different rooms. some android devices use a combination of near field communications (nfc) and bluetooth to share files. but both bluetooth and nfc are relatively slow compared to Wi-Fi, which makes sharing larger files using airdrops much faster and more affordable. As for the protocol, I don't think apple made it public, and as far as I know apple must have patented it. since airdrop uses bluetooth as well, and android and bluetooth iphones are not compatible. therefore, because of all these reasons, we have not seen any android application that can send data via airdrop.
