Visitors are warmly welcomed by Latter-day Saints to participate or simply enjoy the service. They don't feel obligated, but anyone is invited to join in for weekly activities and church services. Non-members can join in too, and they're encouraged to come as they are. Church attire is modest but comfortable, usually a dress shirt and tie for men and a skirt or dress for women. Services typically last two hours, with two meetings: sacrament meeting and a second hour of learning in smaller settings. A ward or branch is a group of members living in the same area, providing opportunities to make friends and feel part of the community. Everyone's welcome at general congregations, where people of all ages serve together. Language wards offer services in languages other than the local dialect. Young Single Adult Wards cater to singles aged 18-35, while single adult congregations support those aged 36-45 who share similar life situations and interests. At church, you'll find a sense of community and refuge from daily chaos, where members gather to worship and strive to be more like Jesus. We'd be thrilled to have you visit! Here, all our values revolve around God and Jesus Christ. Discover more about what we believe in and how those core beliefs can motivate you to follow the Savior.
