Ben's Faith in Mal's Kindness Queen Maleficent "Mal" Bertha is the main character of the Descendants series. She is the daughter of the Witch and Hades, the wife of King Ben, and the Queen of Auradon and the Lost Isle of the United States. Mal is carrying out her mother's evil plan to steal the fairy godmother's wand and enjoys drawing and casting spells (but only when necessary). As the film progresses, Mal abandons many of his former fears and goals, becoming more in tune with his true self; thus he leaves the empty evil life for a good life. With friendship and love, Mal filled a hole in her that couldn't be filled with what her mother had taught her. The basic personality of Mal is a cunning, intelligent and ruthless girl who was raised to be a leader. Although she is compassionate towards her friends, she is vindictive and unforgiving to anyone who does not actively help her. She is artistic and can cast spells. As the daughter of a Witch, she wants to be like her mother: pure evil. However, whenever he tries to prove himself to his mother, he often fails her. But he likes to come up with evil plans and his reputation has made him the most feared at his former school. She doesn't like beautiful surroundings or anything pink and finds them awful, but sometimes wonders what life would be like off the island. Her "bad girl" facade is a play because she doesn't want to be weak in her mother's eyes; being one of them is the only way she is respected by the Witch who never cared for Mal. Ben "saw Mala's behavior" and saw her as a good person. In the second novel, Mal is more open and still loves Ben; she is happy that Ben loves her, even though Mal is the opposite of Auradon.She is still afraid that her mother will break out of prison and cause problems. She also reveals that she regrets bullying her old friend Crazy Maddie. Mal is the only one of her friends who was not seduced by an enchanted item belonging to her parents because her heart was filled with love and friendship. She is still one of those with the most common sense, knowing that using talismans (even for a good reason) will result in items destroying them. Mel's appearance is described as a beautiful girl with dark purple hair interspersed with lighter shades of purple that curls and falls a little over her shoulders. When she returns to the island, she has purple hair again, only this time blonde, straight, and with bangs. Mel was wearing a purple studded leather jacket over a green and purple hand-dyed T-shirt. She has tiered chains and belts around her waist, purple pants and purple studded shoes, and purple and green heels. She also wears a purple fingerless glove. However, since Descendants: Wicked World, others have noted that while she is knowledgeable about the film, something bad almost always happens when she uses magic. When she is stressed or upset, her eyes may glow green. In Descendants 2 , this is shown to be the hidden key to her growing powers, as she eventually awakens the ability to transform into a dragon. Mal's descendants were first seen painting the brick city wall. She and her friends then wreak havoc on the Isle of the Lost ("Rotten to the Bone"). Taking the lollipop from the baby, her mother, Maleficent, appears. He reveals that all four have been selected to attend the Auradon Preparatory School. It starts to bakea spell in a bunch of cookies; However, he discovers that the only missing ingredient is the tears of true sadness. Lonnie gives her a hard time (the other girls also want Mal to change her hair), and Mal reveals that her parents on Lost Island had never shown anything like love to them before, as Lonnie remembers her mother baking cookies when she was sad. Lonnie cries for her; Mal pretends to gently wipe it away and smacks a tear into the cake. The next day, Mal tricks Ben into eating the cake, convincing him that he doesn't trust the treat the villain's child offers him. To Mala's surprise, the love potion works a little too well when Ben starts singing about his love for her after winning a tournament game with the help of Jay and Carlos. Audrey, Ben's girlfriend, is betrayed, hurt, confused and completely humiliated.
