A Family Recipe

By: Chantele Langley

“Moo moo,” said Papa Cow which meant do you think I am a bad dad?
“Mooooo,” said Mama Cow which meant, don’t be ridiculous.

Papa Cow was starting to wonder, however, as he watched Daddy and Mommy Duck with their ducklings. They were such a close knit family. Daddy Duck always played Quacket Ball with the boys every Sunday and Mommy Duck always played follow-the-leader with all five of her children.

But, where were Bertha and Moopers, his children? Right now he wasn’t even sure.

“Bertha, do you want to play follow-the-leader?” he asked after moseying his way down the pasture where he found Bertha digging in the dirt.

“Not now, Dad, I just found a very rare grain of Seminole wheat in the grass. Come look!” She pointed her hoof to a little shiny straw sticking up out of the ground.

“Don’t you want to sing karaoke together or enter a Father Daughter Dance?”

“Uh...maybe later. I have a meeting with the Young Cowettes Science Society tonight.”

Papa Cow tried not to look too disappointed.

“Are you feeling okay, dad?” she asked after turning away from her treasured find.

“Um, yeah,” he coughed. “I’m fine. Have fun at the meeting, dear.”

“Thanks. Love you dad.”

“Love you too, Bertie.”
