Page 2 of Friday 30 April 2021 It is not just Generation Y or avid music festival that are located on the silent rave scene. At MercyCare Wembley Residential Aged Care at home, silent disco are all anger. Page 3 of Friday 23 April 2021 Taking care of yourself independently becomes more difficult as you get older, and for many Australian elders, a home care package from a supplier like The CareSide will allow you to age comfortably at home. Page 4 By Samantha L. on Friday, February 11, 2011 What is the care of the house? Care of the house can help elderly people by providing part-time services such as homework, meals preparation, health care and cetera. Therefore, if you or someone you know needs help with these tasks, but is not ready to move in age residential care, then the care of the house can be something to consider. To determine to what extent home care is required, the individual must be evaluated by an Aged Care Assessment Team (ACAT) which is a free service provided by the Australian government. The evaluators will determine which level of domestic assistance the individual requires: Level 1 - basic assistance requirements Level 2 - low level assistance requirements Level 3 - intermediate level assistance requirements Level 2 4 - high level assistance needs Commonwealth House Support Programme (CHSP) provides entry-level supportelderly people who are still able to manage life at home, but could do with some extra help. The services are prescribed by a Regional Evaluation Service (RAS) and may include domestic assistance, personal assistance and or deliveries. The CHSP is funded by the government, but there are still some hourly taxes. Home Care Packages (HCP) are also subsidized by the government, but are for older people who have more complex needs. There are four levels of packages, as determined by an Aged Care Assessment Team (ACAT). Each level of package has a different financing, with recipients able to select which services they want to use their funds. Visit our Fees & Funding page for more information. Choice and flexibility to help you stay in the comfort of your home A Home Care Package provides government-funded services that can help you stay home for longer, as well as provide choice and flexibility in how care and support is provided. Services may include personal or home care, food and care services, drug supervision, transportation, home maintenance and mobility equipment. There are four levels of Home Care Packages, ranging from basic care to high care needs. The services are based on your individual needs, allowing you to decide the type of care you receive, how it is delivered and who care providers. Flexibility and choice is the future direction of aged care. This means that industry can support the rights and wishes of older people receivingand services. Living independently in your home is not always easy when you grow old.
