Convert pdf to excel file online for free

The best Excel to PDF converters make it easy to convert Excel spreadsheets into PDF files while faithfully retaining all formatting.This is especially important, as Microsoft Excel is the world's most popular spreadsheet software, with one of the perks being that it can generate aesthetically-pleasing tables and charts that make your figures and calculations just jump off the page. But when you send XLS files to other people, some Excel viewers will display your content differently to the reader, as not every device has Excel installed, especially with the profusion of other spreadsheet software platforms now out there. PDF, on the other hand, is a ubiquitous file format that can be read on every major device. Converting your XLS files to PDFs makes sure your audience will view your content exactly as planned.In this article, we outline the best Excel to PDF converters that are currently available.We've also featured the best Word to PDF converter. The best PDF software is Adobe Acrobat Pro DC Whatever you need to convert to PDF format, Adobe Acrobat Pro DC is the tool for you. It gives you total freedom to create PDFs from scratch and edit existing documents without fuss, on desktop or mobile. Of course, it also has a comprehensive range of converters, and is the best PDF software you can buy overall. (Image credit: Soda PDF)Powerful Excel to PDF converterSoda PDF is a full-featured PDF editor with both cloud-based and desktop apps, and is perfectly capable of faithfully converting XLS files into PDF documents. Soda PDF is also capable of converting man other file types to PDF files.The interface is easy to use, and the online tools are just as powerful as the downloadable desktop software platform.Pricing is reasonable, with a license available for a monthly or yearly subscription. Different payment levels are also available according to the number of extra features preferred, such as password protection.Soda PDF is a superb choice if you plan to edit your files after they're converted from Excel to PDF format, as it has some of the most intuitive and powerful PDF editing tools available today.(Image credit: Foxit)All-in-one Excel to PDF converter and editorFoxit PDF Editor is perhaps the best-known PDF editor besides Adobe Acrobat Pro, considered a cheaper alternative to the official software. One of its many tools is an Excel to PDF converter. Foxit PDF Editor goes a little further than most Excel to PDF converters because you can set custom options. For example, you can choose whether to convert a single Excel sheet or an entire workbook. You can pick it up for a one-time price or opt for a subscription that includes ongoing updates. An online tool is included in the package, but it's a stripped-down version of the desktop software. (Image credit: Wondershare)Top-rated PDF conversion and editing toolWondershare PDFelement can convert from XLS to PDF. It's a desktop-only solution, but apps are available for both Microsoft Windows and Mac OS.Excel to PDF conversions are fast and accurate, but the excellent PDF editing tools are what make Wondershare PDFelement a contender for best Excel to PDF converter. It's not the cheapest option, though, though it does include batch processing.A free trial version is available for download so you can test it out for yourself, but a watermark is added to saved PDFs in the unregistered version.(Image credit: Nitro Pro)Windows app for converting .xls to .pdfNitro Pro is a PDF editor and converter for Microsoft Windows. Unlike many other converters on this list, Nitro Pro doesn't have an online version, so you must install the app on every desktop computer that you want to use it on. When converting Excel documents, the resulting PDF table cells can be quite small, so they can be difficult to work with in Nitro Pro's editor interface.Nitro Pro's strength is in its batch processing. You can import multiple Excel documents while specifying rules defining the generated page size and image compression. Once your documents are converted to PDF, you can run additional batch processing wizards that create metadata or add passwords.(Image credit: SmallPDF)For small volume Excel to PDF conversionsSmallpdf is a colorful online PDF converter that supports Excel, Word, PowerPoint, and JPG files. Though it's free to use for basic single-file conversions, the number of conversions you can perform without purchasing a Pro account is limited. A desktop app version can be downloaded, but it's only available with a paid account. But although Smallpdf supports compression, merging, splitting, eSigning, and password protecting PDFs, its editing tools aren't as intuitive when compared to some rivals.Smallpdf is a good choice for a one-off Excel to PDF conversion from time to time, and its 256-bit encryption makes it one of the most secure online converters, but if you need to do many post-conversion edits on your PDFs, you'll find it lacking in features. If you're looking for more PDF tools, check out the following: By Leonardo R. Grabkowski Converting files has never been easier. No longer is it necessary to download or purchase special software to complete file conversions, such as JPG to PDF. Instead choose from one of several online file conversion tools that allow you to convert your JPG to PDF format. The conversion process only takes a minute, and you'll be able to immediately download your PDF file, either on the website or through your email. Visit the Free JPG to PDF website (see Resources for link). Click on "Choose File." Select the JPG image you want to convert to PDF. Click "Convert." Wait a few moments for the conversion to complete. Choose "Download PDF" on the confirmation screen. The PDF begins downloading to your hard drive. Visit Neevia's website (see Resources for link). Choose "PDF" as your output format. Click on "Choose File" and select your JPG file. Choose "Upload and Convert." Click "Download" when the conversion finishes. Visit Zamzar's website (see Resources for link). Click "Choose File" and select your JPG file. Select "Documents>PDF" as your output file type. Type your email address. Click "Convert" to convert your JPG to PDF. Zamzar sends an email to your inbox containing the download link. I empty files image by Ivonne Wierink from Fotolia.com Making a home movie or video of any sort can be a fun project, but when you want to share it online, things can get tricky. The type of file extension your video editing software has saved your video as may not work if you want to upload the video to certain video sharing websites, and if you want to burn to a CD to pass your video on to someone else, their computer may not recognize the file type either. Fortunately, there are a few websites that allow you to convert large video files quickly. Go to ConvertFiles.com and click "Browse." Select your large video file from the window and click "Select." Check the "Input format" drop-down window to make sure your video's file type is selected. Click the "Output format" arrow and select the type of file you wish to convert your video to. Check the box to have a link to download your converted video if you wish, then click "Convert." Go to YouConvertIt.com and click "Select It." Choose your large video from the window that opens. Click the drop-down menu under "Convert To" and select the file type you wish to convert your video to. Enter your email address in the appropriate field to receive a link to your converted video, then click "Convert It." Go to the Movavi homepage and select "URL" if your video is online or "File" if it is on your computer. Enter the URL or select your video file from the window that opens. Select the file type you wish to convert your video to from the drop-down window and click "Convert." Photo Courtesy: Witthaya Prasongsin/Moment/Getty Images Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, unemployment rates rose sharply in the United States in the spring of 2020. By the end of April, a staggering 30 million Americans had filed for unemployment benefits. Even worse, months later, many jobless people were still desperately trying to cut through all the red tape and the massive volume of people to file their own unemployment claims. Since those early days of chaos, most states have adapted and made improvements to handle all the claims. If you're wondering how to file a claim after all the changes, we can help you figure it out. To qualify for unemployment, an individual who lost their job must be eligible for work, able to work and actively seeking employment. Without a doubt, the ongoing pandemic throws a bit of a wrench into the process of actively seeking work, so that component may vary from state to state and could change at any time. Texas, for example, waived their work search requirement for many months but reinstated it on November 1. If you lost your job due to the pandemic or other reasons, here are the steps to take next to file an unemployment claim online. Whether you were laid off because of the pandemic or lost your job due to other unforeseen circumstances, filing for unemployment benefits is one way to cover a portion of your monthly bills while you're between jobs. Depending on the state you reside in, you will be eligible to apply for unemployment benefits online, in person, on the phone or by mailing in a claim form. Photo Courtesy: JGI/Tom Grill/Getty Images After you've lost your job, contact your state unemployment agency as soon as possible. In most cases, you will file a claim with the state where you most recently worked, but if you recently relocated from another state, that may not be the case. Long story short, where you're currently residing might not be the state that will pay you unemployment benefits if you haven't lived there long. The state agency will provide guidance on that as well as any other issues that could impact your claim. As stated earlier, you need to meet certain criteria in order to be eligible for unemployment benefits. In some cases, people who were fired, suspended or asked to take a leave of absence don't qualify for unemployment. It depends on the reason you were fired, and the rules vary by state. Moreover, if you willingly quit your job, are an independent contractor or otherwise self-employed, or can't go back to work for health or other reasons, you might not qualify. (Exceptions are currently in place to qualify independent contractors and the self-employed, but those rules expire at the end of 2020.) Photo Courtesy: Stefan Wermuth/Bloomberg/Getty Images Each state has different compliance requirements with respect to minimum wages and working hours, so we recommend consulting your state's unemployment agency for details. Additionally, if your application is denied for any reason, you have the right to file an appeal to try to overturn the denial. During the initial application process, each state's unemployment division will ask you to verify and authenticate your identity. These steps may take place as you're filing your application, or they could be the last steps in determining your eligibility. Set up email notifications, if possible, and watch closely for any messages requesting additional information. These types of requests are typically very time sensitive. Photo Courtesy: Justin Sullivan/Getty Images In some cases, an unemployment official will interview you to clarify and verify details regarding your case and your identity. If you fail to answer the questions correctly — or don't consent to this process — you will most likely be asked to provide the agency with documents that verify your identity. Once you confirm your eligibility, it's time to file your claim. Nearly all unemployment agencies accept claims online, especially in light of the COVID-19 pandemic. The online process isn't just helpful for pandemic safety reasons. Virtual systems also reduce errors and speed up the claim process. Photo Courtesy: SDI Productions/E+/Getty Images When you file your claim, you will be asked for some personal information, including your name, address(es), social security number (SSN), last 18 months of employment history, a record of wages earned and the reason and dates for your employment termination. If you want to make sure your claim isn't delayed, be sure to complete all the sections fully and accurately. Finally, keep in mind that unemployment benefits are taxable, so it's generally wise to choose to have taxes withheld from each payment when you first open your claim. Most claims are processed within two to three calendar weeks or 10 business days, although delays could occur during times of high claim volumes. Several states conduct telephone interviews before the final ruling to help prevent potential unemployment insurance fraud. During this interview, you will be asked specific questions about your employment background and other information mentioned in your claim. Photo Courtesy: skaman306/Moment/Getty Images Once your claim has been processed, you will need to make an appointment at your nearest American Job Center for your state or set up an account online. These state-run agencies give people access to job listings and career training resources, and registration is mandatory to receive your unemployment insurance benefits. If you have any difficulty locating your local center, contact your state unemployment agency for assistance. While you may be breathing an initial sigh of relief once your initial claim is processed, be sure to maintain your eligibility status by continuing your job search as directed. Once you start receiving unemployment benefits, you have to file weekly or biweekly (varies by state) payment requests online to be paid — no exceptions. You'll be required to answer some questions about any work you completed each week as well as any other income you received. If you fail to file your weekly claim, your benefits may be delayed or stopped altogether. Photo Courtesy: svetkdi/E+/Getty Images Finally, it's important to keep in mind that unemployment benefits are usually contingent upon a recipient doing their part to actively look for a new job. Although this rule may vary by state at times due to special circumstances (like a global pandemic), the general rule of thumb is that you're expected to pursue work leads every week and report your work search efforts in your weekly claim.Do you have COVID-19-specific questions about unemployment benefits and stimulus checks?
