Both had 10-1 records. Yet the BCS ranked Nebraska 2nd and Oregon 4th. That sent the Huskers to the championship game against No. 1 Miami (where they lost to the Hurricanes 37-14), and relegated Oregon to the Fiesta bowl (they beat Colorado 38-16). Here's how the BCS came to the opposite conclusion from the coaches and sportswriters. First, the BCS averaged the rankings in the Associated Press media poll and the USA Today/ESPN coaches poll. Nebraska was ranked 4th in both, so their average was 4. Oregon's was 2.Then, the BCS took all the computer rankings, threw out the lowest ranking, and averaged the rest. That produced a 2.17 ranking for the Huskers and 4.83 for the Ducks. (Here, lower is better.)The reason why Oregon's computer ranking was lower than Nebraska's was due to the strength-of-schedule factor. That is derived by adding up the win/loss records of the Ducks' opponents and also their opponents' opponents (with the win/loss record of opponents counting for two-thirds of the score and the records of the opponents' opponents' counting for one-third). This number is then compared with all other teams to determine a strength-of-schedule ranking. That ranking is then divided by 25 for the final strength-of-schedule value. Oregon's schedule ranked 31st most difficult, and Nebraska's 14th. When divided by 25, Nebraska's number was .56 and Oregon's 1.24.Then, the BCS added one point for each loss. Both teams got one point. Lastly, teams are awarded extra credit for beating rivals ranked in the top 10. One point is awarded for beating the No.1 team, 9 for the No. 2 team and so on. So Nebraska received .5 quality win points and Oregon got .4.Finally, the results are calculated by adding the average poll ranking, the computer ranking, the strength-of-schedule value and the loss points, and then subtracting from that sum the quality win points. This produces the BCS rating. As with golf, the low score wins.Nebraska ended up with 7.23 (4+2.17+0.56+1 - 0.5 = 7.23).Oregon was 8.67 (2+4.83+1.24+1-0.4=8.67).Eventual national champ Miami was 2.62.Simple. Four days after returning, he went to an urgent care clinic in Snohomish County with a cough and what felt like a fever. The clinic and the Washington Department of Health collected samples and notified the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC); the CDC confirmed he had COVID-19 a day later, on Jan. 20.Though that's the first known case of COVID-19 in the U.S., one study suggested that the novel coronavirus could have arrived to the country as early as December. Live Science previously reported. By the end of April, the U.S. had hit 1 million COVID-19 cases and by Nov. 9, the U.S. had logged 10 million cases.Related: 20 of the worst epidemics and pandemics in historyThe first known COVID-19 related death in the U.S. was a 57-year-old woman who died at home in Santa Clara County in California on Feb. 6, 2020, Live Science previously reported. By May 27, COVID-19 had killed 100,000 people in the U.S. Four months later, on Sept. 22, the death count reached 200,000. In the middle of December, 300,000 people had died from the virus and in just over a month, 100,000 more people have died, bringing the country's total to more than 400,000 COVID-19 related deaths, according to The Johns Hopkins dashboard. One year since the first officially reported COVID-19 case, the U.S. is facing skyrocketing case counts, a relentless death count and a virus that is mutating. Scientists developed vaccines in record-time but state and local officials have struggled to get those shots into arms, with only around 15.7 million recorded doses given to people, according to the CDC.Today (Jan. 20) is also the day that President-elect Joe Biden will take office. Many hope he will patch up the U.S.'s messy COVID-19 response. Biden has a goal of delivering 100 million doses of COVID-19 vaccines to the U.S. population in his first 100 days of being in office, which Dr. Anthony Fauci, the director of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, says is possible, according to Reuters."The feasibility of his goal is absolutely clear," Fauci said on NBC's "Meet the Press" on Jan. 17. "There's no doubt about that, that that can be done."Originally published on Live Science.
