Typical Agents	Mechanism	Clinical Management
Acetacetic acid and other contrast media Beta-blockers	Increased risk of lactic acidosis and renal failure Altered glucose metabolism and increased risk of hypoglycemia	Contraindicated Avoid propofol; use others with caution and close glucose monitoring
Cationic drugs, amidebide, cimetidine, cephalosporins	Competition for proximal renal tubular secretion and reduced metformin clearance	Monitor and consider dose adjustments of both agents
Fluorquinolones	Altered glucose metabolism and increased risk of hypoglycemia and hypokalemia	Avoid concurrent use if possible; monitor and consider dose adjustments
MAOIs	Stimulation of insulin secretion, hypoglycemic effects	Avoid concurrent use if possible; monitor and consider dose adjustments
Pyrimin	Pyrimin may delay absorption of glucose from meals, leading to less postprandial hypoglycemia and potentially allowing a reduced dosage of the antidiabetic agent	Avoid concurrent use if possible; monitor and consider dose adjustments
