Like many Mesoamerican calendars, the Tzolk'in, or the Holy Round, the calendar operated on a 260-day cycle. A theory for the meaning of its length of the cycle is that the 260 days related to pregnancy [source: Maya Mystery School]. Another proposes that the calendar represent the length of time to cultivate corn. However, it is more likely to be based on the Maya reverence for numbers 13 and 20. In the Gregorian calendar, we have seven days of the week and, depending on the month, from 28 to 31 days. The Tzolk'in calendar consists of a set of 20-day names, symbolized by images called glyphs, and 13 numbers called tones. The days are numbered by one to 13, and the names are also given in sequence. The beginning of the Tzolk'in calendar begins with the first day name, Imix' and number one. The days continue in sequence, with the second day which is a combination of Ik' and number two; Names and day numbers combine in sequence until all 13 tones are used. Once the calendar reaches day 13, denoted by B'en and number 13, numbers start again with one, but day names go ahead with the 14th glyph, Ix. By turning this way, the two sets form 260 unique combinations of a day name and a number. For example, once you reach the end of the day name cycle with 7 Ajaw, the day names start again at Imix, and the numbers continue: 8 Imix, 9 Ik', 10 Ak'b'al and so on. This content is not compatible on this device. Think of twoGears, with the 13 numbers spaced around a smaller circular gear that fits into the largest day names geared in hieroglyphics. If you block these gears together with the number one and the day name Imix', then rotate gears until you reach one and Imix' again, you will get 260 unique days. These gears turn to the final combination click in position at 13 Ajaw, marking the end of the year. It's easy to see the meaning that the Mayans put in the Tzolk'in calendar. For example, they believed that the date of your birth determines the characteristics you will show in your personality -- very similar to some people believe that your astrological sign does it today. Saint men also program some events throughout the year on the basis of the Tzolk'in calendar. At the beginning of each uinal (period of 20 days), a shaman will count forward to determine when religious and ceremonial events occur. Then he would have selected the dates that would be the most prosperous or most fortunate for the community. Despite its myriad functions, the Tzolk'in calendar could not yet measure a solar year, the time needed for the sun to make a complete cycle. Because of this, the Mayans needed a more accurate calendar to track the length of time we consider as a whole year. The Monkeymen calendar is ready for people who like to have updated print of the month program posted on the refrigerator or hidden in a sheet protector in front of a binder. It is very easy to use (install the test and you will be able to watch a 90-second video tutorial). Type your scheduled events for the month in question, add some items to the list to do, customize the overall look with a few clicks and print it. It does not merge with templates or PowerPoint. The calendar is visually appealing with a choice of 16 unique backgrounds (from the subdued faces in high-energy monkey-steel-blue) and colorful "stickers" you can use to represent special events such as football games, birthday parties and holidays. You can also customise your stickers quite easily. You also rely on those stickers, because the text you type is small enough and a little difficult to read. At least the To-Do List items are big and bold. A photo in the upper right corner can be switchedone of your own, or another of the stock images provided by Monkeymen. --Leigh Anne Jones Note: When you purchase something after clicking the links in our articles, we can earn a small commission.
