Who wrote it: David Warlick, who runs the Landmark Project, a consulting firm for teachers in North Carolina. But his real passion is technology, and strategies to reach children in the age of the Internet. How many leaders are we losing when we teach them to be taught, he writes, instead of teaching them to teach? ÂeMoving At The Speed Of CreativityWho writes it: Wesley Fryer, Director of Education Support for AT&T in Oklahoma.The skinny: Long and articulated posts about school reform, creativity, technology and apparently everything else comes to mind. ÂeWhy do young children love show-and-tell so much? Why do teachers feel so pressured to drastically limit show-and-tell time? Who wrote it: Joanne Jacobs, a freelance writer and authorThe Skinny: There's a ton of research out there on education, much of it impenetrable. Jacobs makes it accessible to non-professionals. It also reveals best practices (such as how Lego Minds storms involve girls in science) and worst practices (Texas' attempt to ban cupcakes). CC0-BY/greymatters/pixabay Your child's education is one of the biggest investments you can ever make. Choosing the right school will help your child get through high school, but how do you choose the "right" school? There are so many things to consider, and it seems like everywhere you look you'll find someone who claims to be the "best". Each year, several lists are published that rank schools according to a wide range of criteria, including academic or sporting achievement, university acceptance rates, student satisfaction and teacher/student ratio. So which list is right and how do you decide the best school for your child? Many of these lists have been compared and below you will find the public high schools that consistently feature in all of them. Thomas Jefferson High School for Science and Technology (TJHSST) is regularly featured in many lists of the best schools. In fact, this school has been Named in all comparison lists for this article.
