King size Mattress (76" x 80") Buy list: timber: 4 – 2 x 6 x 8' Pine Studs (main frame) 3 – 2 x 4 x 8' Pine Stud (left, center & right support) 20 – 1 x 3 x 8' Pine Boards (slats) 3 – 1 x 3 x 8' Pine Board(trim) 1 – 1 x 2 x 8' pine board (optional return since it is not visible) 1 – 4 x 4 x 8' douglas fir (legs) *do not buy treated timber! chemically treated stuff is intended for external oo and has a green tone to it. hardware: 2-1/2"" kreg finish screws: Rust-Oleum ultimate wood stain (dark walnut) minwax polycrylic satin polyurethane cut list: main frame: 2 – 2x6 @ 78" (front, rear) 2 – 2x6 @ 79" (left, right) slat supports: 2 – 2x4 @ 79" (outside) 1 – 2x4 @ 79" (center) not all king size mattresses are equal! Check your size to make sure they will work with this construction! I have a mattress in silky memory foam. • I included a faq section at the bottom of the post. please read through this and any of the comments before asking a question! • please go here to upgrade 2015 King-size platform bed plans! I'm better! back here to see my construction process for each corresponding step! the main frame is 2'x6"""" with a center 2'x4"" set 1-1/4"" for stability. I have a 2'x3"" on each side set 1-1/4"" All in all, it was $75 for the wood. the first time with the kreg jig. strong enough! Cut the 2x6. cut the front and2x6 to 78" and your sides to 79". before attacking each joint, control by square! cut the center 2x4 to 79" and the outside 2x3 to 79" as well. filled in all the main voids & cracks I go to rest a little eyes. next up will be sandblasting & coloring! I was tuned. sandblasting, coloring and throwing on poles actually takes a little time. But you know what? I made it. I also did legs. because I was bored! 4x4 legs are cut to 4"! In the foreground. They sit well under the slat supports. Look at that bump! Okay, so the sleds are cut to 75"". There are 19 total slats. showing a leg. Now I'm about to beat the wood. do not judge me! triple plundered some screws, nuts and bolts. I'll just take the signs. This quarter is about to be. sten! I brushed the water on the wood before giving the stain a more irregular look. cut the front 1x3 and rear 1x2 to 75"". cut side 1x3 to 83"", attach the set with 1"" brad nails. Pre-drilled with a little before nailing and will go into how butter! clamping, gluing and nailing. and paint the bennature! I need more pliers! set the trim thread with the inner edge of the 2x6 frame. 3-1 / 2' screws make makeup. Pre-drill before screwing his legs. another first floor of the legs/trim the final coat of poly is lit and I hijacked the legs for. You guessed, other stains and poles. .amrind I came back with the last update of the bedside table! after cutting and sanding slides with 80/120paper, I took them to the room and threw them in the frame. I took a piece of 2x6 scrap to use as a spacer for sleds. I tweaked the spacing of some sleds to make sure they fell over the top of the two medium legs. I drilled a screw in every piece a quarter of the road down and then alternating sides with the spacer. And here is the last nightstand, without any pillow or comforter. . Later I plan and build the headboard, so stay tuned! All right, I'm back with the photos of the warhead! Look! To see how the headboard was done. click here! And here's how the bed looks in the new bedroom! Please read both the FAQ and the comments below for answers to any of the questions you have regarding this building. If you do not see your question answer, comment and I will do my best to clarify things! I really want to help you make a platform bed. xoxo rick Frequently Asked Questions: How do I tie my legs? The legs rest under the 2x3 slat supports and are attached to the main frame using 3-1/2" screws. Pre-drive in the 4x4 legs about 2" and then screw. What stain did you use? I love it! This stain is super lovely. I agree. The stain is "Rust-Oleum Ultimate Wood Stain" (French Walnut). How did you get that look with the stain? For the stain I used the water/stain method used in the construction of the pallet head. Here is a breakdown of the process: I filled an old Tupperware container about halfway with water andbrushed water on wood. Since the wood is porous, it will first absorb water, then the second stain. Putting more water on (i.e. completely saturate the wood,) less stain will be able to be absorbed. Then I immediately spotted (with a separate brush.) It's a mess, so make sure you work on an old cloth or something. To get different tones: Darker: Mark them with a brush, immediately wipe out the excess stain with the rag. Half: Brush water, then brush the stain and dry accordingly. Lighter: saturate with water, brush on the stain and clean. Did you use a foam or wax or something? YEP! I applied (3) coats of satin polyurethane. This is my first project. I don't know how to apply polyurethane... Here is my process: After allowing ample time for the stain to dry, clean and/or store-vacate wood to make sure there is no dust. Take a brush or one of those cheap foam brushes and apply a first generous coat with the grain (see here.) Let dry that coat (1-2 hours depending on temperature / humidity) and then light sand with a fine grit sandpaper (200 or 220 should make make makeup.) If the foam is still sticky, you need more drying time! Then apply the 2nd coat, let dry, sand. Repeat again for a truly consistent light-coat, except for the sand after the third coat. You're done! Here's the stuff I'd recommend, but don't buy it from Amazon. Run to Lowes and you'll get much cheaper. As far as I know, Home Depot does not wear this brand.Minwax's stuff is good, too. Does the frame ring? No! 2x6 are solid! 29 June 2015 14 August 2012 31 July 2015 platform bed frame for king size mattress. king platform bed frame for memory foam mattress. king platform bed frame for foam mattress. what kind of mattress is best for a platform bed. can you use a regular mattress on a platform bed frame. can you put a regular mattress on a platform bed frame. what mattress is best for a platform bed. what is a good mattress for a platform bed
