App Support Privacy Policy Seeds in Minecraft Pocket Edition are a random combination of numbers and letters that help you to start off your game in various different environments. Use the following guide to use seeds effectively. Step 1: Click New to create a world after launching Minecraft. You will see a screen appear prompting you to enter a new name for your game, and a field with the label “Seed.” Make sure to click the Creative button, which is next to the Survival button. Step 2: Determine which seed you want. Seeds alter the terrain that you find yourself in when you load your new game in Minecraft. You might be in a desert, in a forest, or out on an island depending on the seed you enter. Before you enter a seed, look online for resources that list seeds and the corresponding environment that each seed creates. Some are simple, and others involve glitches or cheats. Step 3: Enter the seed combination in the Seed field. When you are researching which seed you want to input, you will see a combination of letters or numbers, such as 1408106526. That seed in particular results in a setting that features a mountain village and floating islands. Other seeds include “nyan” and “Watergate.” Step 4: Start the game and enjoy your seed as you spawn into new environmental terrain. Part of the beauty of Minecraft Pocket Edition is this kind of seed-based creativity! Recap: Follow the steps above to start using seeds to create exciting new worlds in Minecraft Pocket Edition. Obtaining[edit] Breaking[edit] Harvesting fully-grown wheat yields from 0 to 3 seeds per crop harvested (about 2.5 seeds/crop harvested on average). Wheat seeds can be obtained from breaking all variants of grass, which yields 0 to 1 seed. If harvested with a Fortune enchanted tool the drop rate from grass is increased. The looting is calculated by a binomial distribution: a drop is attempted three times with a success rate of around 57% to yield the 0–3 drops. Each level of Fortune enchantment increases the number of attempts by one. Chest loot[edit] Trading[edit] Wandering traders sell wheat seeds for an emerald. Villager gifts[edit] This feature is exclusive to Java Edition. Nitwit and unemployed villagers throw wheat seeds at players under the Hero of the Village effect. Usage[edit] Crop[edit] Main article: Crop Farming Different stages of crop growth. Wheat seeds can be placed on farmland by right-clicking, where they grow through eight stages. When left alone, wheat seeds planted on farmland grow to become wheat, which can be harvested by the player. Planted seeds require a light level of 9 or greater to continue growing. If the light level is 7 or below, the crops un-plant themselves (“pop off”). It is not possible to plant seeds if the light level is too low. Crops grow faster if the farmland they are planted in is hydrated. Using Bone meal on crops also increases the speed of growth by randomly increasing their growth stage by 2 to 5. Breaking the final stage produces 1 to 4 wheat seeds and 1 wheat. If they are harvested early, they drop 1 seed without any wheat. Farmland may be trampled (reverted to a dirt block) if the player or any mob (passive or hostile) falls onto the farmland from 1 block or more (i.e. jumping or walking off a ledge). If trampled, the crops have the same drop rates they would normally have. If falling sand or gravel falls on wheat or any other crop, the falling sand/gravel is destroyed because crops are a non-solid block. Breeding[edit] Wheat seeds can be used to breed chickens, lead chickens around, and make baby chickens grow up faster by 10% of the remaining time. Taming[edit] Like other seeds, wheat seeds can be used to tame parrots. Composting[edit] Placing wheat seeds into a compostor has a 30% chance of raising the compost level by 1.
