Chromatic blade best color. Chromatic blade wow.

Today's best Shadow by Blade deals As the competition heats up in the cloud gaming arena, you'll hear a lot of familiar names throwing their names in the hat. But it's a relative unknown that could turn out the winner of the cloud gaming wars. Shadow by Blade, a cloud gaming service by the eponymous Shadow, has been quietly building a service that not only allows you to game, but also to do graphic design, perform complicated computations, and more. Is it perfect? No, but it's got a head start on what could be the future of cloud gaming. Game streaming services like Google Stadia, Nvidia GeForce Now, and Project xCloud allow users to play games from multiple devices. Each has an interface reminiscent of the home screens found on consoles and PC gaming apps like Steam. Blade's Shadow differs from the aforementioned services by giving you remote access to a fully-functional Windows 10 gaming PC. This means you can use Shadow for purposes beyond gaming. Because of that, Shadow is more robust and flexible than its competitors. Shadow by Blade pricing and configuration There are currently three tiers of Shadow's service: Shadow Boost, Shadow Ultra and Shadow Infinite. Boost is the only tier that's currently available. You'll have to sign up on a waiting list for the other two. For now, Boost is available in two subscription plans. There's the $14.99 option for those who might only need the service every once in a while or the $11.99 monthly subscription. Need for Speed: Most Wanted (Image credit: Laptop Mag) When they launch, Ultra and Infinite will have similar setups with the former costing $29.99/$39.99 monthly and the latter priced at $49.99/$59.99 monthly. Aside from pricing, what differentiates the three services is the specs of the virtual computer you have access to. With Boost, you get a virtual system with the equivalent of a 3.4-GHz 4-core processor with 12GB of RAM, 256GB of storage, and an Nvidia GeForce GTX 1080 GPU with 8GB of VRAM. Ultra bumps you up to a 4GHz quad-core CPU, 16GB of RAM, 512GB of storage and an Nvidia RTX 2080 GPU with 8GB of VRAM. Infinite takes things even further with a 4-GHz six-core CPU, 32GB of RAM, 1TB of storage, and an Nvidia RTX Titan GPU with 24GB of VRAM. Shadow effectively lets you rent a Windows PC via Shadow's servers. You can access it from any Windows/Mac/Linux/Android device. It's also accessible on the Shadow set-top box. The PC in question features an Nvidia GTX 1080 graphics card, 12GB of DDR4 RAM, 256GB of storage space, and 1Gbps download speed. With specs like that, you can run almost any game at high settings. If you're on a budget and can't afford to build a comparable PC, then Shadow is a fantastic means of experiencing high-end gaming. As long as you have a 15mbps connection, you're solid. Resident Evil 3 (Image credit: Laptop Mag) However, games and applications don't come pre-installed. You'll have to download and install those yourself as you would on your own PC. You won't have to do extra tinkering to get your keyboard, mouse, speakers, and gamepads to work with Shadow. Just plug your devices into your PC and Shadow will automatically detect them. It's possible some peripherals may not be compatible with Shadow, but the ones I used functioned as they would on my personal computer. Shadow by Blade app The Shadow mobile app for Android and iOS devices allows you to access Shadow from your phone or tablet. However, using the mobile version of Shadow comes with the typical hurdles of mobile gaming. "Mobile version" is perhaps a misnomer considering you're still accessing the same desktop you would when using the PC app. Streets of Rage 4 (Image credit: Laptop Mag) This can make navigating the desktop more difficult since you're using your fingers to pinch, zoom, and drag. If you need to type, you'll do so using your device's on-screen keyboard. Doing so takes up screen space, making it harder to see what you're doing. You can enable a virtual gamepad (like those found on numerous mobile titles) to play games. But as with all mobile games, playing this way obstructs your view of what you're playing. Thankfully, you can connect controllers, keyboards, and mice via Bluetooth. Connecting a keyboard or gamepad diminishes the portability of Shadow on your phone, but at least the option exists. Shadow by Blade gaming to test Shadow's gaming capabilities, I downloaded and installed Steam and the Epic Games Store. Just like on my own PC, I needed to login to each app to access my game library. I also had to validate the remote PC using security tokens. This could be a hindrance to some since you can't just launch into a game as you would on something like Stadia or Xbox Game Pass. But as I stated before, Shadow is a remote PC, not a game streaming app. Doom Eternal (Image credit: Laptop Mag) Speaking of games, I tried out a variety of titles from each of my libraries. Doom Eternal, Streets of Rage 4, Marvel's Avengers, Resident Evil 3, Mass Effect, and Need for Speed: Most Wanted played almost exactly as they would on my PC. I say "almost" because there were some instances of minor input lag or buffering hitches. However, these were few and far between. Mass Effect (Image credit: Laptop Mag) Playing games on my mobile devices wasn't as intuitive because I had to access Shadow with touch controls. However, once I got the games running, I played using an Xbox Bluetooth controller without a problem. I should note that I have Verizon Fios as my internet service provider, which provides a reliable connection. This would account for my optimal experience using Shadow. I'm sure those playing on spotty Wi-Fi or areas with minimal coverage may not have it as smoothly as I did. Marvel's Avengers (Image credit: Laptop Mag) After gaming, I downloaded and installed Adobe Photoshop and Audacity to Shadow. As with games, using these apps was no different than on my PC. If you're a content creator on a budget or someone who needs to edit a video or podcast on the road, having access to editing software from Shadow's remote PC is a godsend. Shadow isn't as intuitive or user-friendly as the previously listed game streaming services. There is no dedicated interface for accessing games and you'll have to download separate gaming clients to access titles. But what Shadow lacks in user-friendliness it makes up for with robustness. So long as you have a good internet connection, Shadow effectively gives you a high-end PC at a fraction of the cost of the genuine article. Because of that, it is objectively the best game streaming service on the planet. With the new skin being a huge hit I see a lot of people asking for advice building Dexcalibro. Just follow these guidelines. Get +80% Power Strength + 80% power strength is the breakpoint at which your Exalted Blade will achieve 100% status chance, which is the whole reason you are using Chromatic Blade. There are a few ways to accomplish this depending on what is available to you. You will be committing 1-2 mod slots to power strength. For the 19ers you can get the Excalibur Pendragon Arcane Helmet (+15% Strength) along with the Exilus mod Power Drift (+15% strength) and Energy Conversion (+50% strength). 15+15+50=80. For slot efficiency you can use Blind Rage on rank 8 (+81% strength). What don't really want to go higher than that, but if you already have your Blind Rage maxed out it still works just fine at a penalty of being slightly less energy efficient. For energy efficiency you can use Energy Conversion (+50% strength) along with Intensity (+30% strength). In any situation Transient Fortitude at rank 9 or above can take the place of Energy Conversion but it is plainly worse. Sometimes you just gotta go with what you have. Just as with Blind Rage you would actually prefer not to level this above rank 9. Get Enough Survivability There are some players who will never equip a survivability mod, but for the rest of us there are essentially two options. You will be committing 1-2 mod slots to Survivability. Quick Thinking is tougher to get and essentially must be paired with Primed Flow but gives the most toughness and combos extremely well with Excalibur. For normal warframes when Quick Thinking kicks in to save your life the warframe gets staggered. This can lead to a stunlock into death situation. However, when Excalibur is using Exalted Blade he parries all attacks coming from in front of him, thus preventing the stagger from taking place. Vitality is easier to get your hands on, easier to rank up, and doesn't require a primed mod to be useful. It is more than enough to take you through Sortie 3 as well and will only rarely fall behind Quick Thinking in pretty long games. If you are using the Pendragon Helmet or Blind Rage setups for power strength you get an extra mod slot compared to using Energy Conversion plus Intensity. This can be filled with Quick Thinking/Vitality/Steel Fiber if you choose. Sustain your Blade Exalted Blade can be very energy hungry. Luckily there are a ton of mods that help to quench it's thirst. You will be committing 4-6 mod slots to sustaining Exalted Blade. Power Efficiency mods are all useful here. Streamline is pretty much a must have as it has no drawbacks. As u/LemonTea1493 mentioned efficiency mods are more useful than Duration mods for purely keeping your blade up, but keep in mind that reducing duration too much makes Radial Blind worthless. Power Duration mods basically act similarly to efficiency mods do for our purposes. Continuity or Primed Continuity are a shoe in. Augur Message and Constitution are easy includes as they have no drawbacks. Narrow Minded is great for keeping Exalted Blade up but it makes Radial Blind nearly useless. Primed Flow is amazing if you use Quick Thinking and still great if you dont. Flow works great as well. Whichever one you have is an auto include. When using Exalted Blade many sources of energy regeneration no longer work on Excalibur, but Hunter Adrenaline and Rage do. Exilus Slot is Optional without Pendragon Helmet if you aren't using the Power Drift + Pendragon Helmet combo then you don't really need to unlock your Exilus slot. If you want to anyway you can basically throw whichever mod you want in there. Handspring and Endurance Drift are two of my top picks. Aura should be Corrosive Projection Much like the Exilus Slot you can pretty much slide whatever you have into your Aura slot. Corrosive Projection is definitely the best, though. Keep in mind that you won't benefit from Energy Siphon while Exalted Blade is active. My Build just as an example this is my Excalibur build which handles Sortie 3 with ease: Chromatic Blade Blind Rage (rank 10 since I use it on other frames who want power strength) Vitality Hunter Adrenaline Primed Flow Primed Continuity Streamline Constitution Aura: Corrosive Projection Exilus: Handspring If I were to use Narrow Minded it would take my Exalted Blade from extremely long duration to ludicrously long duration while making Radial Blind nearly useless. If I were to drop a mod due to using the Power Conversion + Intensity Setup it would be Hunter Adrenaline. I consider it to be a bit of a luxury as in 99% of games that I use Excalibur I could probably keep maximum energy up with just energy globes. It is more essential for a Quick Thinking build. Speaking of Quick Thinking, I would totally use it over Vitality if I had it, but I dont. Melee Weapon Build for Exalted Blade by u/GT_Flip over the above link for a guide on modding your melee weapon to use Chromatic Blade to its full potential. This is just as important as building Excalibur himself correctly.

Acquisition [ ] This mod can be acquired by attaining the rank of General under Steel Meridian, or the rank of Maxim under the Arbiters of Hecis, and spending 25000 Standing 25000 Remember that the status chance of Chromatic Blade scales with Power strength so if you get to 200% PS, 90% elemental are stronger than status/elemental mods. Hit targets for millions of damage. 5 level 2 zzzcf 3 years ago Exalted Blade has 10% base status chance already so you only need 180% power strength to get the augment to +90% status chance.
